

Independent learning tasks in Economics

Review each lesson's notes and, highlight key theory and diagrams. Add to the class notes you have made with relevant/interesting additional material.
Check the BBC News website for breaking news under the 'economics' tab once a week. Print off stories that link to specific areas of the course, read and annotate them, and add to your file at the relevant point.
Regularly browse www.tutor2U.net , focusing on the Economics blog. The 'reference' section of this website is a goldmine, use it for every topic! Create a section in your file for 'comment and opinion'. Look for other sources of economic comment/opinion.
Browse the titles in the 'Economics' section of the library.
Experiment with data drawn from the ONS, (Office of National Statistics), website.
Read your notes from the last lesson before attending the next lesson. This will help you get to grips with new information quickly.
Use econplusdal YouTube channel to enhance your understanding of economic theories.
Use questionbank on the WJEC website to create your own examples, including examiners comments and mark schemes.
